LANDSCAPE DESIGN STUDENTS PRESENT IDEAS TO HGTV

Landscape design students recently had an opportunity to show the pros when they were invited to present their ideas for a new entry on the Scripps Networks’ Knoxville campus. The students, taught by Associate Professor and Landscape Architect Garry Menendez in the Department of Plant Sciences, were each given three weeks to come up with their unique proposal for the entry.

Creative solutions included the use of decorative walls, glass art panels, new signage, year round plant interest, LED lighting and more. This is the second phase of design coordinated by Menendez. A partnership agreement is in the works to allow more collaboration and support between UT and Scripps.
